How does the school identify and assess SEND?

When pupils have an identified special educational need or disability before they join our school, we work very closely with the people who already know them and use the information already available to identify the possible barriers to learning that may be within our school setting and to help us to plan appropriate support strategies.

If you think, your child has a special educational need we will discuss this with you and assess your child using the Birmingham Language and Literacy Toolkit. These assessments will be carried out by the school; sometimes we may seek advice from more specialised services. We always share our findings with you and the next steps we need to take.

If teachers feel that, your child has a special educational need this will be mentioned through the observations, assessment and the use of the Birmingham Language and Literacy SEN Audit.

There are occasions where we are unable to meet the needs of pupils and a change of placement will be in the child's best educational interest, however we would work with you and outside agencies for the best available outcome for your child.

How does the school know how much progress is being made by SEND pupils?

In addition to termly monitoring of all children, those with SEN have individual reviews where targets are reviewed and set for the following term.

How Does School Support Looked After Children (LAC)?

LAC will have an Electronic Personal Education Plan (ePEP) to support their needs and all the relevant bodies will contribute to this.

Admission of Disabled Pupils:

In line with Equalities Act (2010), and section 69(2) of the Children and Families Act 2014, the school will make reasonable adjustments to enable disabled pupils to participate in school life. An Accessibility plan is published on the website to show how the admission of disabled pupils can be facilitated.

What extra-curricular activities can a pupil with Special Educational Needs access at school?

All children are equally encouraged to take advantage of the wide range of after school and lunch time clubs available. On some occasions additional clubs are laid on to support gross motor and fine motor development.

Does the school have a SEND co-ordinator? If so, who are they and how can someone get in touch with them?

Abid Halim, SENCo

How are parents of SEND children and young people involved in the education of their child?

In addition to 3 pupil progress meetings, parents are expected to attend one meeting each term to review the progress against targets set in their child's individual target plan (ITP). These plans are specific to the needs of the child .

How are SEND pupils involved in their own education?

Targets are set in child-friendly language and pupils are invited to all reviews where appropriate. Their views are sought prior to the review and they are encouraged to contribute to meetings.

Complaints / Grievance Procedures

Although we will try our best to support you and your child, if you are unhappy with the service you receive, you are entitled to report your concerns. A complaint can be made in the first instance informally to the class teacher or SENCo. If this does not resolve the concern, the person making the complaint should put their concerns into writing and send these to the Headteacher, who will acknowledge receipt of the complaint. If this still does not bring resolution, the concern can be escalated in writing to the Chair of Governors, which will then be investigated using the Schools Complaints Policy.

How does the governing body involve other people in meeting the needs of pupils with Special Educational Needs including support for their families?

The school has a Special Needs Governor who represents the interests of children with Special Educational Needs. The Inclusion Committee meet termly.

Who are the support services that can help parents with pupils who have Special Educational Needs?

Family Support Worker

SEN Parent Partnership

Parent support groups run by the Communication and Autism Team.

How do the school support pupils with Special Educational Needs through transition?

All children have transition sessions in the summer term.

Those children with ASC will have transition books.

A member of staff will attend reviews at a child's nursery placement.

Secondary schools will be invited to meet children and pupil profiles will be passed onto the SENco.
